

Making America a Nation of Gardeners, a Land of Gardens

American Horticultural Society Annual Report

July 1, 2006–June 30, 2007

MESSAGE FROM THE CHAIR

Being Informed, Inspired, and Involved

FISCAL YEAR 2007 (July 2006–June 2007) was a year of steady progress at the American Horticultural Society as we focused on branching out into new avenues of communication, giving voice to those who believe in the benefits of gardens and gardening, and strengthening our member services.

With the debut of our AHS webinar series in early 2007, we took a huge leap forward in bringing the best of American horticulture into homes and work places across the nation via the Internet. We are indebted to Allan Armitage, one of America's top horticulturists and a member of our AHS Board of Directors, for lending his time and energy to make this inaugural year a tremendous success.

Once again, the AHS National Children & Youth Garden Symposium delivered an exceptional and inspiring experience to attendees in 2006. A world-class venue—the Missouri Botanical Garden—combined with a stirring keynote address from author and outdoors advocate Richard Louv, were ingredients for record-breaking attendance and over-the-top energy.

Behind the scenes, our AHS staff has been hard at work streamlining processes and finding new ways to serve you, our valued members.

The Society's continued success is the result of the contributions, involvement, and dedication of our members, donors, volunteers, and partner organizations. Day in and day out, the AHS is able to move forward through the strength of synergy and collaboration. To each of you, I offer our most heartfelt appreciation.

Thank you for being a part of our AHS national community of gardeners.

Helping Americans enjoy the rewards of gardens and gardening

Since 1922 the American Horticultural Society (AHS) has helped home gardeners and professional horticulturists expand their knowledge, heighten their passion for gardening, and embrace responsible stewardship of the earth. Membership in the AHS offers access to a wealth of valuable resources designed to cater to a broad array of horticultural aspirations and inclinations.

The Society's Reciprocal Admissions Program encourages garden visits across America by providing AHS members a network of public gardens that offer free or reduced admission, along with other perks. AHS members also benefit from discounts on a wide range of AHS educational programs and at flower and garden shows across the nation.

The American Gardener magazine, published bimonthly, delivers a diverse collection of articles and columns that explores the richness of American horticulture, including garden design, new as well as time-tested plants, and sustainable gardening. Feature articles this past year included tips for establishing beautiful lawns organically by Kris Wetherbee, a profile of 10 tough native trees by Guy Sternberg, and a creative approach to designing small gardens that offer a big impact by Virginia Small. And regular departments, such as the "Green Garage®" series written by Contributing Editor Rita Pelczar, offer news, book reviews, interviews with experts, garden event listings, and much more.

In addition to the Society's prestigious magazine, numerous reference books, and top-notch educational programs, the AHS website at www.ahs.org offers a valuable resource for members and others interested in expanding their knowledge of gardening and horticulture.

Another popular member benefit, the AHS's Annual Seed Exchange, functions as a national version of the long-standing tradition of gardeners exchanging seeds over the back fence. In 2007, more than 150 kinds of annuals, perennials, trees, shrubs, vines, and edible plant seeds were available for AHS members. Among these were notable selections such as the 'Ruby Port' cultivar of common columbine (Aquilegia vulgaris), Mexican feather grass (Nassella tenuissima), cranberries (Vaccinium macrocarpon), pawpaw (Asimina triloba) and 'Cosmic Purple' carrots.

Connecting to tomorrow's gardeners

Recognizing the need to expose young people to nature—and plants specifically—the AHS launched the National Children & Youth Garden Symposium in 1993. Since then, hundreds of civic leaders, children's advocates, teachers, parents, gardeners, and others have gathered once a year to share ideas and success stories and become inspired by new ways to engage young people in gardening.

The 14th annual National Children & Youth Garden Symposium, hosted by the Missouri Botanical Garden in St. Louis, Missouri, attracted more than 260 attendees from 34 states plus the District of Columbia.

The three-day Symposium featured 30 educational sessions exploring a variety of topics including how young people can become partners in garden-based learning initiatives, what the best plants are to connect children with their environment, and how to go about creating a classroom herbarium. Keynote speakers were Peter Raven, one of the world's leading botanists and advocates of conservation; Richard Louv, author of Last Child in the Woods: Saving Our Children From Nature-Deficit Disorder; and Caroline Lewis, director of education at Fairchild

Tropical Botanic Garden. Drawing on their very different backgrounds, these speakers underscored how critical it is for today's youth to be inspired to care for the earth.

Another program that focuses on encouraging a love of the earth in young people is the "Growing Good Kids—Excellence in Children's Literature Awards." Presented in partnership with the Junior Master Gardeners program, these awards honor engaging and inspiring plant-, garden-, and ecology-themed children's books. The five books selected to receive the 2006 award were: Earth Mother by Ellen Jackson, Leaf Man by Lois Ehlert,

The 2006 National Children & Youth Garden Symposium in St. Louis

Miss Lady Bird's Wildflowers by Kathi Appelt, Our Apple Tree by Gorel Kristina Naslund, and The Tree Farmer by Chuck Leavell and Nicholas Cravotta.

Sharing the art and science of horticulture

The AHS Garden Schools celebrated their third year of providing a national education program that offers participants an opportunity to explore their passion for gardening through a variety of in-depth experiences while getting personal instruction from some of the nation's leading horticultural experts.

A Garden School participant at the Lady Bird Johnson Wildflower Center puts into practice the art and science of garden photography

In October 2006, "The Art & Science of Garden Photography" Garden School was held at the Lady Bird Johnson Wildflower Center in Austin, Texas. Forty-four attendees from 17 states enjoyed the rare opportunity to work side-by-side with noted garden and nature photographers Robert Bowden, Alan and Linda Detrick, Roger Foley, and Brian and Shirley Loflin. Often working one-on-one with the experts, the participants learned invaluable tips and techniques for garden photography in the inspiring setting offered by the Wildflower Center.

The award-winning AHS Green Garage® display traveled to the Northwest Flower & Garden Show in Seattle, Washington, in February 2007, sharing the message of how to garden in an efficient and earth-friendly manner. The recipient of a bronze medal at the show, the exhibit engaged attendees by demonstrating a feasible design for their home garden, showcasing "green" tools and products, and offering earth-friendly tips and techniques.

One of the Society's most important educational initiatives is the AHS Internship Program, which provides valuable learning opportunities to those who are pursuing careers in horticulture, garden communication, and education. During 2006–2007, seven students from across the nation spent a semester or a summer working with the staff of the AHS, gaining valuable experience, skills, and the opportunity to be mentored in their fields of interest.

An AHS editorial internship includes researching and writing for the Society's magazine, The American Gardener

Coastal Gardens of New Zealand, Wilderness Gardens of Costa Rica and Nicaragua, Spring Gardens of Japan, and Gardens of Martha's Vineyard.

Providing useful and authoritative information

Historically, American Horticultural Society publications have provided key reference materials for gardeners, designers, and horticulturists across the country. Among the more than 100 AHS publications issued since 1922, best sellers include the AHS Encyclopedia of Perennials (2006), the AHS A-Z Encyclopedia of Garden Plants (2004), and Gardens Across America (2005), a two-volume guidebook to public gardens around the United States.

The members-only section of the AHS website contains an incredible variety of horticultural resources, including full access to the articles from more than five years of back issues of The American Gardener. The website also offers AHS members discounts at plant and garden supply companies, opportunities to sign up for member-only offerings, and access to the network of gardens and arboreta participating in the Reciprocal Admissions Program as well as the garden and flower shows offering free or reduced admission to AHS members.

A new member benefit, the AHS webinar series, was launched in the spring of 2007, providing three one-hour online seminars with University of Georgia horticulture professor and noted garden author Allan Armitage. More than 550 attendees from 42 states, plus the District of Columbia and Canada participated in the webinars, which were titled "Perennials That Work," "Annuals That Work," and "Bulbs That Work."

Recognizing horticultural achievements

The American Horticultural Society honors horticultural accomplishments through the Great American Gardeners Awards, the AHS Book Awards, and Flower Show Awards.

In 2007, 12 Great American Gardeners Awards were presented, celebrating horticultural heroes such as renowned author, professor, and researcher Michael A. Dirr with the Liberty Hyde Bailey Award, and Rutgers University horticulture researcher and professor Elwin R. Orton with the Luther Burbank Award (a complete list of award winners can be found in the box on the right).

Three garden books received the Society's

Michael A. Dirr, recipient of the AHS Liberty Hyde Bailey Award in 2007

2007 Book Award, which recognizes outstanding garden books published in North America. The winners were: Hellebores:

A Comprehensive Guide by C. Colston Burrell and Judith Knott Tyler (Timber Press); Defiant Gardens: Making Gardens in Wartime by Kenneth I. Helphand (Trinity University Press); and Wildflowers of the Pacific Northwest by Mark Turner and Phyllis Gustafson (Timber Press).

The Society's Environmental Award was presented at 32 flower and garden shows across the nation in 2007. Commending green industry leaders for their commitment to environmentally responsible gardening, the award recognizes flower show exhibits that demonstrate earth-friendly designs and practices.

Showcasing and demonstrating the best of American horticulture

River Farm, the 25-acre national headquarters of the American Horticultural Society, continues to grow thanks to our dedicated volunteers, corporate and community partners, donors, and staff.

In September 2006, River Farm was once again a host site for Fashion in Bloom: Collection 2007, the second annual new plant showcase hosted by the Garden Centers of America. Elaborate thematic displays featuring plant introductions from Centerton Nursery, Inc., Cherry Lake Tree Farm, Goldsmith Seeds, Proven Winners®, and Saunders Brothers Nursery were enjoyed by green industry professionals and the general public.

In May 2007, staff and volunteers planted more than 18,000 plugs of grasses and herbaceous perennials in River Farm's five-acre André Bluemel Meadow, completing the fourth phase of the meadow restoration along the banks of the Potomac River. All plants have been donated by AHS Board member Kurt Bluemel, owner of Kurt Bluemel, Inc., a wholesale nursery in Baldwin, Maryland.

Eagle Scout Colin Amerau helped to construct an outdoor classroom at River Farm

Some of the youngest members of the community surrounding River Farm contribute to the enhancements of River Farm. During the summer of 2006, Girl Scout Molly Turner renovated the Fairy Tale Garden in the River Farm Children's Garden in order to earn her Girl Scout Gold Award. In June 2007, Eagle Scout Colin Amerau, from Alexandria, Virginia, led a team of fellow Boy Scouts in the creation of an outdoor classroom for The Growing Connection Demonstration Garden at River Farm. Consisting of a workbench and seating, the outdoor classroom is a valuable addition for youth programming at River Farm. ~

American Horticultural Society Financial Summary

With assets worth more than $4.25 million and debt-free ownership of its headquarters property, River Farm, the American Horticultural Society is in a strong financial position to fulfill its mission. A growing membership and generous donors make it possible for continued enhancement of programs, services, and outreach efforts.
